It is a different proposition -

Yes, it is different to go to college in this year, 1944. It is a different proposition to teach in a college. We who are at Swarthmore feel this change and would like to explain its significance; to make an intangible attitude explicit so we may remember it.

The outward changes at Swarthmore are many. They began, of course, in 1941, with the slow but insistent decrease in the masculine population; a situation saved in 1945 by the sudden appearance of the bright Navy uniforms on the midsummer campus. The early adoption of a third semester per year shifted our whole conception of time. Friends became elusive people who graduated every four months. Only the more necessary and fundamental things retained significance.

Dwindling was extra-curricular emphasis, the collegiate attitude. Prominent became the part our college was playing in the community, the necessity to accelerate our own scholastic efforts, the importance of a mature point of view.

Inwardly, we ask many questions about college life that were not asked before. Should I be at college? Is this merely a "stop-over"? Should I be doing needed work somewhere else? Is the liberal arts education of real value in wartime? Most of us who truly ask have come to the conclusion that a college education of the widest scope is of greater value today than ever before; that it is a privilege precious and precarious. We only hope we are making the most of it. . . .

DEDICATION...

ESPECIALLY TODAY is Swarthmore proud of its youthful president; proud of his dignity, his knowledge, and his ability; for Swarthmore is now more than a place of learning, it is a part of a country at war.

To John Nason, who is so efficiently guiding us through these turbulent days, we the class of 1945, dedicate this Halcyon.

"Swarthmore is a beautiful place"... A subdued blending of wide sweeping lawn... stately old trees... buildings broad and comfortably spaced... with a Gothic touch... a Quaker dignity in liberal Academic focus... all this is part of what we call "the atmosphere" at Swarthmore. But we must be more specific.

Contributing most conspicuously to "the atmosphere" is Clothier Tower. Its granite beauty offers more inspiration on still, clear mornings than many a Collection speaker . . . Shades of ivy and narrow steps . . . cloistered garden . . . changelessness . . . moonlight. Still, Parrish with its solidity, its hospitality and its activity, is first in our affections . . . Somehow the control center . . . the point of departure. A life could be spent here going between its dorms, cafeteria, classrooms, commons, parlors, postoffice . . . Did it ever look any different? Surely always the same warm welcome for those trudging up Magill . . . "Women's Dormitory" . . . too stiff a title for our old friend of the mossgrey stone . . . the new linoleum, and "Mr. Hopper."

Looking across Campus to the amber lights of Clothier at night is an experience worth remembering. Through its cloistered arches domed Sproul Observatory pokes up with the look of a magic hat . . . giant beetle . . . or Galileo en edifice . . . Home of future astronomers and a definite addition to the intellectual atmosphere . . . More characteristic of Swarthmore is the frame Meeting House . . . nestled between lovely low-hanging trees. Many of us look forward to First-Day Quaker Meeting spent in its white-washed silence . . . or a warm Sunday morning walk with its understanding approval.

A daily student procession goes down Magill walk . . . through the dank underground passageway and the musty but friendly station, "to the vill" . . . a coke at the druggie or a snack supply from the co-op . . . The campus seems to extend and include them.

And this . . . "the atmosphere" . . . is just the same. The way we feel may be different, but there is no warattitude about the looks of things.

People We Know.

DEAN HUNT

One of the busiest men on campus, but time to listen to the problems of the Student body—Dean Hunt may be seen hurrying from classes to appointments, to meetings. The war has greatly increased his duties. Not only is he the intermediary between the Navy and the College, but he is the controller of deciding who shall enter Swarthmore. Also, he has the task of helping these boys when they are called for the armed forces. Due to the shortage of help he has been given duties which never before have fallen to the Dean of Men. Not only pinch-hitting for others, but locking up as well! Despite this, he finds time to participate in college social functions. A scholar, a regular guy, a friendly cheerful presence, he is liked by all. With all he shares his hobbies—a good tenor voice, a great love of music, a passion for the West.

DEAN BLANSHARD

... As a Teacher, we think of "Mrs. B.'s" keen interest in philosophy, literature, and education; her ability to make these subjects live for her students....

. . . As a Dean, we remember "Mrs. B.'s" sympathetic attention to our problems and her valuable suggestions about our grades, our courses, and our social life. . . .

. . . As an Advisor, we recall "Mrs. B.'s" tactful way of handling delicate situations in women's government, her liberal point of view, and her efficiency in effecting new policies. . . .

. . . As a Hostess, we remember those freshmen "getacquainted parties" of "Mrs. B.'s"; her ability to put us at our ease, and those delicious cakes she baked. . . .

... But these varied roles hardly cover the intangible qualities which have endeared Dean Blanshard to Swarthmore. Perhaps her cheery "good mornings," her extraordinary gift of remembering names, or the graciousness and charm which characterize her numerous appointments and meetings contribute to making "Mrs. B." a unique figure in the Swarthmore community.

THE FACULTY

No matter how complete the equipment of a college, how progressive the ideas of its administration, without a competent and truly interested faculty it could never take a place among the ranking institutions for higher learning. We, as Swarthmore students, have every right to be proud of our faculty. With almost innumerable accomplishments, honors, and degrees to their credit, they form an outstanding and brilliant group, many of whom have gained no mean recognition and distinction in their various fields.

In any moment of doubt concerning the value of a liberal education in these times, its place in a world at war, a few reflections about our faculty seem to offer convincing proof that we are right in choosing to be here at Swarthmore. The willingness with which they have undertaken the heaviest-part of the burden of an accelerated program even in addition to war work which many are doing outside of college, their continued interest in each one of us as an individual, plans for changes and improvements in the curriculum—these would not be realities but for a belief that the education which we are receiving is important and vital.

Looking back over that part of our college life which is behind us, the tendency is often to remember the good times, the fun we had. When we really stop to think, however, the picture changes. We see altered outlooks which new fields and new facts have given us, intellectual curiosity spurred by new ideas and ideals, plans for the future which perhaps had never entered our minds before we arrived as Freshmen. These are the contributions of our professors, contributions which cannot fail to have an influence upon our whole lives.

SENIORS ALL . .

Second Semester Seniors.

session actually came along, many returned for it. Thus, the following fall found a number of Juniors a semester ahead of those who had started out with them in '40. The class spirit which had manifested itself in the tug-o'-war Freshman year and in ingenious formals reappered for the last Hamburg Show and a dance in the "Pink Elephant Cafe," but confusion was in the offing.

The Seniors as they stand now include but a remnant of the original class of '44. Two successive graduations have depleted their ranks, not to mention the damage done by the draft. On the other hand, but adding more than ever to the complications, some hardy souls who normally should have graduated in '45 have managed to catch up to those who started a year before them. Yet, however things are now, when reunions roll around the class of '44 will be itself again, and will at the same time be able to claim distinction as the first class to graduate three times.

LUCY AXELBANK

Long blond hair and penetrating blue eyes . . . known for her keen and searching mind . . . affectionate, interested in people . . . Active in all phases of SSA . . . race relations, labor, and housing problems . . . Former Phoenix member . . . now writing for the "Liberal Press" . . . a music lover . . . Thorough and persevering, soft-spoken Lucy will go a long way.

EDWARD FRENCH BABBOTT

Ed...a transfer English major from Amherst whose genial enthusiasm and unsuspected efficiency hurried him to the center of things...MEC, Chorus manager and Little Theatre Club worker...a real enthusiasm for classical music, the stage and Gilbert and Sullivan...an interest in the other fellow's point of view...should be a capable personnel manager.

HELEN ELIZABETH BECKER

In appearance she is one of Goya's "Majas" . . . in the invariable midnight bull sessions she argues with intense enthusiasm about her many interests . . . A tremendous zest for living includes appreciation of music, spring, her extra-curricular reading and the people and places she has known.

MARGERY VAN TRUMP

Trump . . . beautiful even in the morning . . . curly hair and radiant complexion . . . an irrepressible and contagious laugh . . . More efficient than you'd think to hear her talk; she's proved it in the Little Theatre Club . . . Combination of opposites and extremes : . . aristocratic poise, boisterous humor, sudden outbursts of temper . . . In a word -terrific.

MARGARET LOUISE WALKER

Everyone knows that Peg's strictly on the level . . . says what she feels and it's appreciated . . . makes lasting friends . . . Gay conversation while jitterbugging . . . Pulls a ninety-eight in Chem lab and still worries before exams! An ace hockey player and WAA officer . . . perennial hall president . . . Studies regularly, but limbers up on after supper bridge and records.

DAVID WINNE

Dave . . . big blond and as good-natured as good-looking . . . his dimples are now with the V-12 . . . . wasted in an almost womanless existence . . . shyness with talent lurking in unsuspected places . . . high marks in engineering achieved quietly . . . plays a mean trombone in the college band . . . capable of good clean noisy fun.

RACHEL ANN WRIGHT

Better known as Rae . . . a pert little miss with definite ideas of her own . . . Seen at early morning breakfast, on the golf course in assistant manager capacity, in the Halcyon office, or any place where something exciting goes on . . . Can be counted on for a quickie to the druggie . . . a good bull session . . . even motherly advice when things go wrong.

JANE MOORE ZINNINGER

Hails from Cincinnati . . . with amazing eyebrows and a way of making points clear in seminars . . . Deep interest in music and a record collection which gives Cutting competition . . . Buries herself in the stacks at odd intervals, emerging with that pre-occupied look . . . it's abandoned easily, however, for such various activities as fencing, German Club and Outing week-ends.

THE JUNIOR CLASS OF . . .

The Junior class is a composite of those who started their college careers way back in the fall of '41, minus the enterprising individuals who accelerated, plus equally ambitious accelerating '42 Freshmen.

The original class of '45 arrived at college somewhat later than they had originally planned, due to an infantile paralysis epidemic, experienced a short and rather uncomfortably warm Freshman Week, then, still humming "Oh, I'm the Reluctant Freshman," settled down to become a part of Swarthmore. Numerals on the water tower, the boys' damp and chilly defeat in the traditional tug-o'-war, the fun of the lirst T.P.'s, the super snake dance, pep rally and Hamburg Show before the lirst Haverford game in years, and sore throats from cheering after it was over, a quarantine which confined everyone to the campus, the enthusiastic—almost to the point of being riotous—election of Freshman officers, the Frosh Fling and a picnic in Crum in the spring—these are a few of the things which will long be remembered about that year.

The return of some of the members of the class for the first summer semester occasioned, "Well, what are you—a first or second semester Soph?" when everyone got back in the fall of '42, but even at that, the class was still the same old group that had started off together. A formal with Collection transformed into a slightly reasonable facsimile of Sun Valley was the last fling for the original class as an undivided whole, however, for in the middle of the year came a shift which brought summer Frosh up a notch as many hitherto '45 males and a few of the females became Juniors. By now a large number of the Freshmen of that all are '45ers, too, and, in fact, they've practically taken over so far as numbers go.

The Junior class at present is a big one, an assorted one, and an uncertain one. With people taking off any one of the three semesters, no one knows just exactly what anyone else is; sometimes there are even moments of doubt about one's own status. Class officers and class functions are confusing, almost impossible. But suffice it to say that there's still plenty of spirit and loyalty alive in the hearts of '45—originals and accelerated newcomers.

BERNICE K. ABE

Only a few have seen this little Hawaiian glide through a hula, but she is grace personified! More familiar . . . her high laugh . . . generous willingness to help anyone, anywhere . . . and an unwarranted pre-exam quakiness . . . Likes hright colors . . . dubonnet sweaters . . . red nail polish . . . Inconspicuously and quietly, Bernice's gay black eyes get the most out of the situation.

ROBERT WILLIAM ALEXANDER

Tall Zoo major in methodical pursuit of attractive women . . . sense of humor bent toward the practical joke . . . doesn't talk before noon except under academic pressure . . . jayvee footballer, golf, model trains . . . continually carries interesting looking atomizer . . . an enthusiastic Phi Sig and a rabid defender of Reading . . . and, oh, that trumpet.

JANE ELLEN BARUS

Judy . . . 'most always cheerful and ready with a laugh . . . her quick, terse sentences and dry sense of humor are well-nigh unforgettable . . . International Relations Club and SSA occupy spare time . . . that is, when she isn't leading the "Smoking Room Singers" in western ditties . . . Amazing tales of summers spent picking beans . . . Hopes to work for the Civilian Foreign Service.

SECOND SEMESTER

PETER HUGO BASCH

An intelligent and studious engineer with a Jersey-German accent and a novel sense of humor that often borders on the satanic . . . once contributed his Collection seat to a naive Persian scholar . . . his PF-dodging cane has become famous . . . a lover of the classics, Phi Delt, and authority on European affairs.

HARRIET HUNTER BELL.

Harriet . . . syness and reserve dispelled by sudden laughter and warm sympathy . . . conservative by nature, but capable of outbreaks of derring-do . . . she'll surprise you . . . Talents for jitterhugging, bridge and golf are repressed by constant companion . . . Possesses genuine appreciation of classical music . . . Slow to anger but mighty in indignation . . . "Oh damn."

HAROLD WILLARD BENDITT

Hal... a huge shy grin... quiet socialism repressed by civil engineering training... a backfield hustler on the immortal Bearcats... swims—free-style... dresses in any style so long as it's colorful... Hobbies: guns, ice-skating, and "Marge"—a Philadelphia girl, the object of a phenomenal string of stimulating phone calls.

JEAN PRICHARD BLANCHARD

Jeannie . . . the girl with the very blond hair . . . and a gleam in her eye at the mention of horses or sailboats . . . Number one badminton player . . . costume designer for the Little Theatre since Freshman year . . . A Chemistry major with labs almost every day . . . but she's still ready for a hand of bridge at the slightest provocation.

RICHARD BURT

Dick . . . quietness . . . corduroy jackets and that generally well-dressed look . . . friendliness balanced by shyness . . . likes a good time with the "fellas" but the demands of social life hide him even from roommates . . . Phi Sig functions and a hacking-good golf game . . . specializes in twoman bull sessions, and the Martin Biological Lab.

RICHARD ROY BLOUGH

Dick . . . brilliant, consistently cheerful Chemistry major and Washington Alumni Scholar . . . baseball, the chorus and honors work . . . good-looks of the dark curly variety aid his systematic social work (feminine) . . . an intangible quality of bloughziness that features the double-entendre . . . gives "Huah!" a sinister significance all his own.

JOHN BEN BUTLER

"Did you see that gorgeous cirrus-cloud sunset?" . . . In her spare time draws cats, star gazes, collects inverts at Woods Hole in the summer . . . Nightly cold cereal has no chilling effect on her warm disposition.

MARGARET ANNE CHADWELL

Easy-going, gentle Margie has an enviably creamy complexion and just as enviable an outlook . . . takes things seriously but keeps on the upswing . . . Seems made for soft lights and music . . . but an energetic Gwimper with unusual athletic ability . . . versatile interests . . . that mad urge to knit . . . Cherishes old friends . . . a passion for Pan Americanism, but still loyal to New England.

RICHARD NETHERTON CHAMBERS

Dick . . . unusually genial . . . amazingly enthusiastic . . . habitual worrier . . . electrical engineering has its ups-and-downs . . . the C in the spectacular, if short-lived BCK broadcasting system . . . takes Swan's music courses on the side . . . Bach, modern classics and jazz . . . One of the few Swarthmoreans who usually dresses like a gentleman.

WILLIAM WALLACE CLENDENIN

Bill . . . quietly ambitious Physics major whose marks are a marvel . . . a B is a catastrophe and C's just don't happen . . . winner of honorary scholarship for best marks in class . . . systematic except for an untidy room . . . A hard game of tennis . . . Phi Sig upholder . . . usual friendliness capable of the barbed retort.

MARIAN LOUISE COLEGROVE

Combines ballet music, earrings, foreign affairs, and a sometimes-up-hairdo . . . Lively to the bubbling point . . . A Poli-Sci or perhaps Psych major . . . Her interests include just about everything, with athletics, but ladylike, leanings toward badminton, tennis, and varsity swimming . . . Marnie's a whimsically sympathetic person . . . always interested in the fun or troubles of others.

THOMAS BRINTON DARLINGTON

A quiet, solid geniality, definitely difficult to dislike . . . class president and MEC member with a host of friends but only a few intimates . . . A rugged soccer player and capable swimmer . . . Wants to become designing engineer but will be company president before you know it . . . most likely to succeed.

C. RUSSELL DEBURLO

Rusty . . . popular, friendly extrovert and red-haired dynamo . . his aggressive, hustling brand of varsity soccer is always a drawing card . . . hits a baseball farther than many a six-footer . . . Week-ends away . . . social life over in the vicinity of Haverford . . Delta Upsilon . . . DeBurlo and Kaiser . . . the cheeriest grin in college.

CHRISTEL HULL DUFFY

Chris . . . as smart and up-todate as her clothes . . . deep brown eyes with a gleam in them . . . She likes a crackling fire, afternoon tea and dinner at eight . . . An inveterate sleeper . . . Known both for her shrewdness and her serenity . . . yet to be caught sans poised self-assurance . . . Sees all, knows all, tells nothing!

0 U O J 3 S

PATRICIA DUNHAM

An engaging chuckle and lively blond curls . . . that's Pat . . . she's completely unspoiled though friends rave and public dotes . . . a crack student, too . . . Intensely Latin-American and fond of concocting horrific Mexican dishes . . . Really goes for long bike trips "hosteling" around . . . Fully tuned to her complex world . . . Pat's obliging, open-minded, organized.

ETHEL SHOEMAKER FARLEY

Alice - in - Wonderland look when she wears her hair long . . . super-sophisticate with it piled high . . . Ethel spent a year away from college inspecting airplanes, then decided to get back to that Poli Sci . . . Swimming team and Halcyon staff, too . . . Studies like mad during the week, but don't be fooled . . . it's to make up for those Coatesville week-ends.

JULIA LORAINE FISHBACK

Julie . . . a happy person . . . continually glowing quietly about something wonderful that is or will be . . . friendly interest in people everywhere . . . but partial to Cleveland . . . Thinks soundly and comes to convincing conclusions . . . bulls brilliantly . . . Phoenix editor . . . Psych honors . . . enthusiastic and efficient in everything she does . . . Appreciates little things . . nice bindings on good books, pink tea-sets . . . lives gracefully.

EVELYN GRANAT

Lyn lives in a world peopled with engineers . . . lends her mechanical talents to SN . . . eats, sleeps and talks radio . . . Takes time off occasionally for twenty-four hour snatches of sleep . . . but has absolutely no time for dancing and such, though she's an ardent music lover . . . Lesser hobbies: trail riding and bowling.

ALICE G. GREEN

Second Semester Sophs.

TWO YEARS TO GO . . .

Logically speaking, the Sophomores of today are the class of '46; should graduate in that year and should have arrived at Swarthmore back in the fall of '42. But things just aren't logical anymore.

There are some normal Sophs, of course. They came to college as part of an extraordinarily large class and one which proved itself to be outstanding in short order. At first glance, upper-classmen noted the predominance of women over men, then taking a second look, saw what very good-looking women they were. The '42 Frosh will long be remembered for their number of glamor girls. In addition to the beauty angle, however, that extra "something" in the way of energy and dash put in an early appearance —for instance, the "We do'od it" and "Buy War Bonds" painted on the water tower beside their numerals.

First Semester Sophs.

Another part of the present Sophomore class arrived last summer—with the Navy. They came to a transformed Swarthmore, and although three hundred V-12's may have been somewhat overwhelming for those first few days, the Frosh weren't alone in their feeling of newness and strangeness. Even Seniors felt rather lost with their little world so suddenly and completely changed. The first Saturday night "mixer dance" with six hundred people jammed into the Men's Gym was a "Freshman party" for everyone.

As a class, the Sophs are no more and no less unstable than any other class. Some will in all probability graduate sooner than others; trying to figure out who will be with you when the great day rolls around is one of the biggest puzzles of the times. But it doesn't really matter so very much. The important thing is getting the most out of our life at Swarthmore while we're here, and contributing all that we can, too. There's no question about whether or not the Sophs are doing both—they are.

Second Semester Freshmen.

JUST BEGINNING . . .

Although it was early winter rather than fall when the present Freshman class arrived at Swarthmore, their memories of the first few days and weeks here will probably be much the same as those of former classes. The long trek up Magill from the station for the first time, registration, those placement tests and conferences, bare looking rooms piled high with luggage, halls filled with trunks and furniture, "Where do you come from and what's your major?" conversations—war or no war, these seem to be experiences which no Freshman can ever escape,

Freshman Week lasted for only one week-end, and even at that, many of the upper-classmen were back by Saturday night in time for the informal dance in Collection; so without much ado the Frosh were plunged into college life at full swing. In a few weeks came the inevitable ordeal of "signs" for the women and one brutal day of pig-tails and no make-up—decreed by the Sophs. But no one can ever say that the '47 gals didn't take it all as the best of sports.

Along the social line, class spirit showed itself in two Frosh parties. One was a carnival with a variety of booths and dancing; the other a barn dance in bilarious style. And in college activities, too, the members of this class have done their bit, contributing actors and actresses to Little Theatre Club plays, try-outs for the Phoenix and Halcyon, committee members, and even piano players for the jam sessions in the Managers' Parlor,

The crystal ball is clouded when it comes to trying to predict the future of the class as a whole; how many of the present Frosh will graduate together in '47 is anyone's guess. But as individuals, no matter what class they're in, it's a safe bet that their enthusiasm and energy will never lag.

IN THE SERVICE

Summer . . . . 1943

On the first day of July, 1945, about three hundred men in all varieties of civilian dress arrived on Wharton's hallowed quad. Between that sunny morning and the spring of 1944, the Naval Unit has become a definite part of college life. Of course, the group is not static: men have left it to go to midshipmen's schools, to medical schools, to boot camp; and new men have come in at the beginning of each semester; but the place of the unit in the college is essentially unchanged.

From the motley bunch of civilians the Officers had to mould a military group. The task was immediately attacked from many angles: there were hours of drill in the sun, calisthenics at 6:00 a. m.; uniforms—fitted, exchanged and worried over; tetanus injections week after week; finger-printing and issuing of I.D. cards; lectures on naval organization; and the ever-present hour-by-hour routine of activities, marked by bugle calls as well as classroom bells.

The men in the Naval Unit faced not only problems of officer-training, but also problems of becoming acclimated to Swarthmore. It would be a useless untruth to say that they all found this an easy change. Emotional attachments to other colleges were barriers to a complete acceptance of Swarthmore; and these attachments, in many cases, still exist. But no one can blame a man for remaining loyal to his original alma mater; we hope only that those who came from elsewhere will remember Swarthmore as a good friend—not, perhaps, first in his affections, but always a good friend.

And the Navy's effect on Swarthmore? Probably the greatest change it wrought was on Wharton. Pre-Navy Wharton was famous—or infamous for noise, confusion, blackjack, untidy rooms, broken windows, ratting, and late hours which did not necessarily mean studying: in general, for riotous undergraduate living. Wharton, as the Navy knows it, is "the barracks"—a place to be kept as neat as possible to please the eyes of the inspecting party; a place to be kept quiet, especially after security hour; a place in which to demonstrate how a future naval officer should live.

Other effects there are, but they are subtle and hard to put one's finger on. We are living the experience; thus, too close to it. But let us hope that the future analyst may look back on this period with approving eyes.

Make Way for Navy...

Alfred J. Caruso, Ens., U.S.N.R. Physical Fitness

Christopher H. Purdom, Lieut., U.S.N.R. Executive Officer

William G. Love, Chief Yeoman

Facing you are the men who govern the operation of the Navy V-12 Unit. They are solving the difficult problem of transforming Joe College into a man fit for a commission in the U. S. Navy.

First, meet the skipper, Lt. Glenn G. Bartle, formerly a midwestern dean and now the commanding officer of the unit. The captain combines his experience in handling young men with just the right amount of Navy discipline to keep things running smoothly.

Right-hand man to the skipper is Lt. Christopher Purdom, executive officer, A short conversation with Lt. Purdom leaves no doubt of his love for his "Old Kentucky Home," but he seems to fit in perfectly with all us Yankees.

The newest commissioned officer is Ensign Caruso. Anyone coming in as director of calisthenics, drilling, et al, has quite a handicap to overcome; but Ensign Caruso is rapidly clearing all hurdles.

Finally, meet the chiefs, who provide the connecting link between officers and men. They are the ones whose oft-voiced, stentorian commands have become so familiar. "Knock it off—hit the deck—get outta that sack—hup, two, three, four—"

Yes, the good ship Wharton is certainly well-manned and faces excellent prospects of continued smooth sailing.

This is about the guys who wear the blue and white suits, who began to appear along Magill Walk last summer. With the start of the Navy V-12 Program, Swarthmore's campus, like a hundred other American colleges, took on a new face . . . not altogether new . . . just a few less wrinkles here, and a bit of fresh color added there.

Actually V-12's story started back in the early days of 1942; days when rationing was yet to come and most people were pretty complacent about America's fighting in a global war. It was then that the under-manned Navy found it could take liandfuls of liberal arts college boys and turn them into Naval Officers within three months of Midshipman School aboard the "U.S.S. Prairie State," lying off 116th Street in New York's North River. "Ninety-day wonders" they called them in those days. Regular sailors hated them; Academy Officers resented them, but in not many more months these "college boys in gold braid" had proved themselves under fire. They were "wonders," and down in Washington the "brass hats" were pretty much convinced that, second only to the Academy, here was the best source of young officer personnel. Of course, soon the Army draft began to pull fellows out of college, and the Navy countered with the V-1 plan whereby college men were enlisted and placed in an inactive duty status until graduation. Then they were sent to Midshipman School. Just why the V-1 scheme was dropped in favor of V-12 probably is something only the swivel chair Admirals know. Actually there must have been good reasons, including the factors of public psychology and the advantage of a more gradual period of naval training. In addition, the program now allowed eligible men from the Fleet and high school graduates an equal opportunity to some part of a college education and a Naval Officer's Commission. Thus, in spite of the various comments: . . . "this is not the Navy; it's V-12" . . . and "what's V-12?" . . . "that means Victory in twelve years or we fight!" the Swarthmore Navy is a functional part of the U.S.N.

To the Swarthmore unit during its three terms of operation have come college boys from Lafayette, Lehigh, Haverford, Swarthmore itself and other nearby schools; high school boys from all over the East; Navy men from the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets and from Naval Shore Stations in the States to the South Pacific Archipelago. The functioning of the Unit is fairly simple. Academic studies come first, with the men depending on the Navy for athletics, drill, pay and liberty. Establishing a balance between being a college student and an A.S., U.S.N.R. is quite a challenge. In almost every instance it has been well met. In the matter of the length of a man's course, the group divides into three general types: . . men who enter the program with previous college credit and are allowed additional semesters according to their major subject . . . those who come in as freshmen and take a prescribed Navy curriculum varying in length with type of study; . . . and V-5 Naval Aviation candidates who are given two terms of college work preceding their fifteen months of flight training. For the first two groups, the regular V-12'ers, there are many multi-lettered designations . . . D-V(G) . . . A-V(S) . . . MC-V(S) . . . all indicating the man's specialty and determining the length of his period of study. This ranges from four terms for Deck Officers, through Supply and Medical men, to the various types of Engineers who are permitted a full eight terms of college work.

The colleges have arranged their schedules to meet Navy requirements; semesters end three times per year . . . March, July and November. Men with the required semesters' credit are shipped to Midshipman training . . . Columbia, Northwestern, Notre Dame, Annapolis, or the new school at Plattsburg, New York. For premeds, training becomes regular work at one of the prominent medical schools.

Future Navy Supply men receive specialized training in the Navy's schools at Wellesley and Harvard. The engineers who will be doing highly technical work with the Fleet or ashore are only required to spend two months in Midshipman training of Naval Orientation before they are commissioned and sent to advanced schools in their special fields . . . physics, radar, power or civil engineering. A great many of these men will go to duty with the Navy's now famous construction battalions, "The Seabees." But for the majority of men now in V-12, Midshipman School means a rugged course in communications, gunnery, navigation, seamanship and a wide variety of other subjects fitting them out for duty as regular line officers. Here is a four months' grind attempting to give men as much training in doing things "Navy way" as available time permits.

It is no secret that the Navy plans to have 80,000 or more amphibious craft afloat in 1944 . . . a great many of the new "gold braid" . . . Ensigns by way of V-12 will be sent to small craft operational training and within three months of their commissioning day may be second in command on an LCT (Landing Craft Tank) or LST (Landing Ship Tank) at sea. And so, whether it is a Battle-wagon, Tin-can, Flat-top or a rubber boat in the "Amphibs," the guys who slept through Collection . . . ogled at the Dining Room's "Floor Show" . . . or jokingly asked why the Cloisters weren't steam-heated in Winter will at last become real "sailors" . . . men of the Navy's steadily growing Fleet.

WITH AN

From our valiant, war-torn Ally, forty-nine Chinese naval officers arrived in Swarthmore the end of October, 1945. They were chosen by competitive examination taken by over 200 candidates and represent every province in China. In Swarthmore they concentrate on learning English before entering specialized schools for technical training. Their English instruction here is under the supervision of Mr. Philip Hicks, and requires a staff of seven full-time instructors, "A strong China must have a strong navy," and these men are its foundation.

In their snappy dress uniforms they are very impressive; but their personalities and enthusiasm are even more so. Swarthmore promptly adopted them as her own, with a sincere hope that learning "American English" would still allow them time for extra-curricular activities. Somehow they have made time and have conscientious representatives on the Social Committee and on the Student Council, as well as generally taking an active interest in college sports and in the social life. Their life in Wharton is like that of any Swarthmore naval V-12'er. At six in the morning they are out with the Navy boys performing calisthenics and running cross country: then classes all morning; drill before lunch for an hour, only to return to class by one o'clock.

A sentence from President Nason's Christmas message to the Chinese represents truly all Swarthmore's attitude toward these, our fellow-students: "You must always think of Swarthmore as your college, as we shall think of you as distinguished alumni."

No. A Control of the Cont a. Tante The state of the s weeks before comprehensive time. As Sophomores, still hardly aware that we are becoming the so-called "grinds," we gaily plan week-ends away, only to spend a good six-hour Sunday "on the books"; and we are glad of it! Junior year brings an onrush of extra-curricular activities, but the midnight, and later, lamp burns to make up for them. Senior year we are lost. Gladly retiring from public life, we realize, perhaps, the value of this education we have been exposed to. Our thought turns comprehensive-ward, and soon!

What is this scholastic attitude at Swarthmore; and why is it? We can only point to its many manifestations: the advantage gained by teaching a few things thoroughly; the honors system; the small but complete and efficient engineering school; our professors, writers of books and holders of many degrees; and, of course, we can point, hesitantly, to ourselves, as students.

Roughly we fall into four groups, each with its way of life and manner of thought. There are the "Social Science Majors"; the Language and Philosophy majors; the Mathematics and Science majors; and the Engineers. The Social Science Majors are a large clan, and active. They band together and talk policy in the Phoenix office; they do social work in Chester, Opposed to their discussions of labor policy and the Federal Bank System are the Humanitarian theory sessions about Shakespeare and Free Will. This is the world of a no less numerous group bent on the literary and teaching fields. Trotter and Martin are the realms of the scientists who spend long lab hours of research in terms of cells and formulae; who will become fine psychologists, physicists and doctors; and who don't approve of too much poetry. The engineers are a law unto themselves. Sturdy athletes and slide-rule-wielders, they will find dependable, well-paid jobs after the war. There are many, of course, who haven't fallen on any side of this academic fence, and who realize, perhaps more fully, the fundamental importance of all.

Has the Swarthmore tradition of study changed a great deal in the last two years? It is completely different for many. The turnover in Navy ranks is, of course, great and sudden. Navymen here for a semester or two have little chance or desire to absorb very much of the Swarthmore tradition of scholarship. Though they must study as never before, this may be, nevertheless, a mere "Stop-over."

ON THE SWARTH

It was a beautiful Sunday morning in December only a few years ago when a horde of droning planes with a strange symbol upon their wings roared over an island in the Pacific and dropped some bombs on a place called Pearl Harbor. No one in the United States—or at Swarthmore—had ever heard much about that name before. But those two words meant a change in the life of a whole nation, and Swarthmore College did not escape. The roar of the bombs could not be heard here, but when the earth shook beneath them at Pearl Harbor, the ivory tower, as we called our college, shook too.

Student organizations mushroomed up in a few weeks to prove that we did realize that there was a war going on. War bonds and stamps were sold; during 1945-44 the leaders were Charles Seiler and Ida Lou Curtis. When the final count was in, about $5,500 in stamps had been sold.

More dollars went to defeat the Axis in the Chest Fund Drive, which combined many charities and relief funds. Held from November 18 to November 25, over $5,000 was collected from students and administration, thanks to the hard work of Gretchen Chase and Curley Bowen.

Students gave something even closer to them than money in the sixth visit of the Blood Bank on January 30, 1944. The committee in charge tore their hair in despair until the very last moment because the flu bug had hit the campus and decimated the ranks of potential blood-givers. Red Cross officials said they couldn't come because we hadn't met the quota, but at the last minute enough donors turned up to make it possible.

Another group of home front soldiers which had hard going was the Land Corps, organized by Libby Hoisington. Everything started off beautifully—two strips of land above Crum Creek were obtained for a victory garden, the W.A.A. bought tools, and Miss Carr promised to buy whatever was raised. But the bardy group ran into one of the worst droughts in years, soil which was about as pliable as concrete, invasions by the rabbits, and worm blitzkriegs. Cabbages were planted—and replanted—and planted again! They never did get a chance to develop into large enough heads, but it was wonderful experience for the farmerettes.

MORE FRONT

This group also helped to allay the shortage of help by picking vegetables for a local farmer. Towards this same end, other college women worked in the dining-room. Student waitressing became a real industry, and a patriotic one for many who put their earnings into war bonds.

Then there is the organized system of air-raid wardens and fire-lighters who go into action as soon as that familiar siren emits its first eerie notes. That is also the signal for the Medical Aid Unit, of which Virginia Rath is in charge, to be on the alert. Dr. Keighton of the chemistry department supervises this multitude of civilian defense activities.

The Swarthmore of ivory-tower fame is looking earthward now, with a vengeance. Though its inhabitants may be armed with only a hoe or a knitting needle, they are making good use of their weapons. Our army of victory gardeners, warbond sellers, and air-raid wardens is on the march.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

Things have really been buzzing for the Student Council this year—it has been bigger and busier than ever. With Frank Johnson as president, Midge Dawson as vice-president, and Nancy Lee Robinson as secretary-treasurer, things happened last summer! Perhaps the most spectacular business was a new Constitution, ratified by practically unanimous student vote. Among other changes, it set up machinery for closer student-faculty cooperation, to be obtained by student representation on faculty committees for athletics, absences, Collection, and scholarship.

The pace didn't slow down at all when the new regime of President Fred Selby, Vice-President Nancy Carpenter, and Secretary Francis Tatem, U.S.N.R., came in. By far the most popular piece of business was the Student Commons. Work on this long dreamed of project was finally put under way despite frequent set-backs because of war-time shortages. When students returned for the spring semester, they found Collection converted into a booth-lined haven for the thirsty, who could sip cokes, and for the energetic, who could socialize to the music of a juke box. Everything from jitterbugging to stark, silent games of chess are to be found there, and almost everyone agrees that it has been a bang-up success.

The Council is also putting out a Freshman Handbook, under the leadership of Jan McCombs and George Heise, which is designed to help poor freshmen like the one who thought that "Sign Here for Cutting Collection" meant that you put your name on the list if you intended to cut Collection! A new system of choosing the Social Committee was another of the Council's projects. Now twelve members are elected by the student body and four are appointed by the cochairmen. Other problems occupying this busy group's attention have been methods of improving library conditions for studying, and the question of whether low scholarship warrants dropping a person from activities. In the light of the fine job of representation which the Student Council has done, all we can say is, "more power to you," and "keep the good work up!"

"Oh, for the good old days when we ratted a room a night!" Those who remember the Wharton of yesteryear may sigh nostalgically as they think back on delightful deeds of destruction in the far-off past. But the Men's Executive Committee, brother to WSGA, might well react differently, for it was this organization that worried over breakage, conduct, losses and thefts, and room choosing. Since the arrival of the navy blue to the halls of Wharton and the wide-spread depletion of civilian manpower, there has been much less for the MEC to do. But, like Ole Man River, it goes on, right on, rolling. Fred Selby was summer chairman, followed by Frank Johnson, with Ed Babbott, Tom Darlington, and Jerry Kohlberg backing him up. At one of their meetings, its powers were more clearly defined, and plans were made to enforce damage assessments more strictly. There is still work to be done, for "the rat" is not an extinct creature yet, as the scarred doors of Palmer will testify!

W. S. G. A.

Like the little old woman who lived in a shoe, WSGA—the Women's Student Government Association—has so many children that we sometimes wonder what she does with them all! This organization, which includes all coeds on campus, has its finger in almost every pie, and there is hardly any aspect of college life untouched by its widespread sovereignty.

Every semester, WSGA as a whole elects chairmen for each one of its brood of 14 committees. Queen of the royal family this fall was Anita Kelley, who was succeeded by Ann Millis in the spring, while Ann Solis-Cohen headed the Conduct Committee and served as Vice-President.

When the navy blue arrived, WSGA threw open two of the class lodges to the Navy, which was not allowed to stray off the S.S. Swarthmore on week nights. Smoking rules for women were made more lenient. The Personnel Committee initiated a new Big-Sister plan in which, instead of each freshman having a big sister, one upperclass woman had several little sisters, usually all on her hall. WSGA has, in its own way, gone "all out for the duration," and intends to carry through with the rest of Swarthmore.

The Social Committee . . . and

Take a good look around at one of the college dances and you'll undoubtedly see a few slightly wilted but bravely smiling individuals repinning drapes, plying the chaperones with food or chatter, hunting up the band after intermission or doing any number of odd jobs.

These versatile martyrs make up the Social Committee which is headed by two chairmen chosen each semester—Jane Martin and Don Kelley, Suzy Forwood and Paul Hough served as such in the past year. Members are partially appointed, part elected, and meetings are held every Sunday night. More half-cocked ideas have been squelched and more put into effect at these meetings than there is room to tell, and no one can ever say that they are dull.

What with the drastic effects of the war on the male population of Swarthmore, the Committee expected its functions to be somewhat curtailed last year, but the arrival of a Naval V-12 unit on campus prompted the Committee to extend its program. Picnics, teas, movies, novelty dances, hay rides, formals, skating parties, barn dances—the list of brain-children could go on forever. Running on a budgest basis, these Elsa Maxwells of ### its works . . .

The Christmas dance held just before the holidays is the big formal event of the year. After much preparation, the dining-room doors are opened, and students find that somehow the tables and chairs have been whisked out of sight, and the scene is the Astor roof—or a reasonable facsimile thereof. The "fairy godmothers" of the Social Committee have waved their magic wands once again, and given us another night to remember.

Schroder, Stanley

Carson, Mustin

"Production under difficulty," or better, under confusion, was the key phrase of the 1945 Halcyon Staff. How to handle the Navy? What to do about the class-confusion? How to meet the rising cost of everything? It was all very bewildering—but fun!

The 1945 Halcyon is a very special edition in lots of ways. For the first time, the Navy jumper appears on Halcyon pages, in a complete Navy section. The book was sent to many alumni and former students in the services. Because of the new semester system, the book covers three instead of only two semesters; another change was the selling of the book to civilians on a voluntary basis. And, of course, there was a much reduced staff.

Still, finding it difficult made it more interesting, and the staff more proud of every forward push. Editor Jan Stanley found plenty of time for the Halcyon, and was overheard to say that she was majoring in it! Frank Mustin, business manager, handled the vast ad-getting, money-planning end with not the greatest of ease, but excellent results. It was Peg Schroder who patiently collected the many junior write-ups, and Fred Selby who wrote up all 39 of the men at once!

THE 1945

Martinez, Hicks, Kain

Group shots weren't taken by professional photographers this time—they just couldn't get the gas to come, so the Halcyon had to rely on native talent in the forms of Fred Richards and Chuck Ferger, who took and developed practically every non-portrait picture in the book. Diligently scheduling the many picture appointments was Bill Carson. Betita Martinez and Sally Kain claimed jurisdiction over Activities and Features, respectively, while artistic planning was up to Squeak Newton. Polly Penman efficiently led forward the circulation drive, while Eleanor Hicks handled women's sports, and Rae Wright and Janie Martin lent literary effort where needed-which it was!

Somehow, April 14th found most of the copy and photography in the publisher's hands. The staff breathed once again, and prayed silently that all should go well till the finish.

HALCYON

Newton

There's life in the old bird yet . . . though the Phoenix office and its staff may present a very different appearance this year, war shortages haven't curtailed "the Phoenix spirit." It has lost pages, men, and the decorations on its office walls, but "the rag" still keeps its vim, vigor, and vitality.

During the summer and fall, the paper came out once every two weeks. Every other Wednesday, it would stir in its ashes and inspire the junior editor in charge—Maggie Gehres, Spider Webb, or Ira Wender—to put up an assignment sheet. Then would start the fight to get assignments handed in by Sunday for capy reading. There the struggle would see is a rag

tinue against vanishing copy-readers, empty space, and ambiguous punctuation. Often one of the three editors-Nancy Lee Robinson, Julie Fishback, or Kitty Strong-who was sitting in a corner racking her brain for the perfect editorial, supposedly immune to any more lowly job, would have to pitch in and count words. But there wasn't just the literary angle to worry about-Anne Carver and Marge Slocum had business and ads to trouble them, while Peg Meeker and Barbara Johnson worked on sports.

After Monday night proof-reading, the staff sent a delegation into Philly on Tuesday to help set up the paper and pacify Sam, the indignant linotype man. Then there was nothing to do but wait, pray. and telephone, until the Phoenixes arrived on Wednesday and Thursday, when the Circulation Staff, headed first by Pat Jones and then Bunny Pyle, went to work.

When spring came, the new editor, Ira Wender, decided that the Phoenix would produce a 2-page issue every week. Mary Ann Gehres was associate editor, and there were new junior editors, too-Jeannette Streit, Isabel Gamble, and Betita Martinez. Yes, there's life in the old bird yet. . . .

THE DODO

"Things are going to be different," said Bill Phelps when he became editor of the winter edition of the '44 Dodo, and with this thought held in mind, he set about improving this venerable Swarthmore institution. A capable staff was an essential; so, choosing those students interested and talented in the field of literary creation, Bill started the Dodo rolling.

It's never difficult to find this group at work; just peek inside the Manager's Parlor at lunch-time and you will discover a pile of people and papers spread out upon the rug. Over there is Meg Gibbons, art editor, displaying her latest cover creation, with Ann Pike nodding her approval, and John Rosselli peering at it over Bob Haney's shoulder. In the right-hand corner will be Pat Jones and Joan Osterman, editor of the '44 Spring issue, critically reading someone's inspired masterpiece. The Dodo staff is in action, sifting and re-sifting all contributions.

In the past, our valued Dodo had fallen into being a mere facsimile of the New Yorker. But with the coming of Phelps and Co., a new policy—of printing only "thoughtful work"—was adopted, and frankly serious as well as just clever writing was encouraged. Because the staff realized that much Swarthmore talent was being concealed under a veil of modesty, a campaign was initiated to bring aspiring authors out into the open. As a result, we had new and better versions of Ye Olde Dodo.

NEWS BUREAU

This organization spreads the fair name of our alma mater far and wide by its contributions to a regular list of local and national newspapers. As our No. 1 press agent, it writes up sports events, news stories, reports of speeches, feature stories and information about the students so that the world can keep up on what Swarthmore is doing.

The staff is made up of students interested in newspaper reporting. Like every other group on campus, the war has cut sharply into its masculine side, but editors all over the country have discovered that women can write sports stories after all, and this discovery was repeated at Swarthmore. So this year the weaker sex took over, and the Bureau was headed during the first semester by Es Ridpath, then by Judy Brott and Jane Martin as co-chairmen for the second term.

Results of the group's work can be seen on the bulletin board outside its office, where clippings from various papers report information about the college, its students and faculty. But seeing their work in print is not the only compensation of the news-hounds—various department heads receive salaries for their work and each story is paid for by the newspapers, furnishing the wherewithal for the Bureau. But the thrill of being in direct contact with big newspapers is satisfaction enough, and for those with printers' ink in their blood, it's the chance of a lifetime.

S. S. A.

The Swarthmore Student Union is no more. One day last summer it sat down at a meeting, and when it stood up again, it had a new name—the Swarthmore Student Assembly. Mary Lou Rogers succeeded Bill Howard as chairman, and was followed by Pinky Terrell in the spring.

Life continues at about the same pace in spite of the change, and the "children" are just as lively as ever. The International Relations Committee, which the SSU adopted last year, attended the Model League of Nations at Hunter College last spring. Another adopted child, the Race Relatoins Committee, has lately been giving voice to lusty squawks about the poll-tax and job discrimination. The Labor Committee continues to hear labor union leaders speak, while the Liberal Press Committee keeps on writing stories for Delaware County's only unfailingly liberal paper. A young and vigorous infant, the Political Action Committee, born shortly after the ill-starred O'Rourke campaign in 1942, swung into action again in 1944 to put O'Rourke in Congress.

Not one of the committees has lost the ability to throw a few hard rocks through the windows of the Ivory Tower. And if their past is any indication, they never will.

. . . has truly come of age this year. A large number of Swarthmore students now turn regularly to "640 on your dial" to hear SN's quizzes, study to its classical music, or wake up to the tunes of the new early bird programs. Those who hate to have their symphonies mitigated with endless gush by a honey-voiced announcer on the wonders of Carter's Little Liver Pills like SN because it is free from commercial advertising.

Like Topsy, the Network "just growed." Today it is housed in West Trotter, with the control booth and main studio on the second floor. Recently a workshop and another studio containing files and a library were added, on the third floor. These elaborate quarters are quite different from the modest room in Beardsley where the Network began three years ago!

The station, now under the direction of Dave Linton, who succeeded Hank Bender, has big plans for the future. It now broadcasts from the Student Commons, and is wiring Clothier as a future site. The technical end has also been expanded—SN now boasts a rebuilt transmitter and a beautiful master control. With this new equipment, and its enthusiastic crew of over 50 workers, the Network is well on its way. N.B.C. had better look to its laurels!

LITTLE THEATRE

The lights are growing dim now. The audience bushes itself in expectation. And slowly . . . very slowly . . . the curtain rises as another Little Theatre Club production begins. In the past year that curtain rose many times on this group of potential Bernhardts and Garricks. First came "Outward Bound," with its allegorical preview of the after-life, its eerie and bawdy scenes. Next the energetic club produced three one-act plays, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," "Happy Journey to Trenton and Camden," and "The Constant Lover." In the interim, it sponsored a performance of the Haines marionettes in "The Chinese Nightingale."

Not yet weary, the indefatigable little theaterites next tossed off their piece de resistance, "Family Portrait," in which Ronnie Landon played a difficult lead as the mother of Jesus. The whole play was quite an undertaking, but under Mrs. Bradley's direction it went off beautifully.

Serving as President during all this fiendish activity was Pat Lum, whose heavy load was shared by Vice-President Margery Van Trump. For a while the Club rested on its laurels—which was easy—but then, in March, it got the urge again, and began planning to produce "A Decent Birth and a Happy Funeral," a new Saroyan play. Pierson Scott MacLean and Vaughan Chambers had leading roles as the Hughman brothers, while Gloria Evans tackled the much discussed role of the burlesque queen.

Miriam Peterson became President for the spring term, aided and abetted by Ed Babbott as Vice-President, Doris Parker as Secretary, and Jean Blanchard as Treasurer. Mrs. Seyril Rubin replaced Mrs. Virginia Bradley as director of dramatics, to lead the Little Theatre Club toward new glory before Swarthmore's footlights.

Music

The musical organizations are big morale-builders in a war-time Swarthmore. The snappy Navy marching band, parading on the football field at games and reviews, produces plenty of zest and spirit for both the Navy and the college. Then add to these thirty-five V-12'ers ten civilian men and women, and the result is the concert band which has played in Collection, for the Wharton Open House, and in the Scott Memorial Amphitheater. This band was organized under Mr. Ernest Willoughby immediately after the Navy entered Swarthmore in 1945. It now continues under the guiding hand of Mr. Bruce Beach.

Struggling against a decimated violin section, the orchestra manages to include almost twenty-five members for a modest concert now and then, under the baton of Mr. Sorber. Chiefly, however, they emphasize playing in ensemble just for their own pleasure.

The college chorus makes up for any lack of public performances which the other musical

The leading character in this little drama is the Sketch and Sculpture Club, which continues to meet despite all the changes of war-time. Playing a leading role is Jean Franckson, the Philadelphia artist who teaches this group. On one side of the "stage" are the sketchers, who divide their time between still life and studies from models. The sculptors are hard at work, too, and not to be forgotten in the cast are the models, who range from college students to Assistant Dean Martha Biehle. The club will show the results of all this diligent labor on their "opening night"—an exhibition in the Cloister Gallery.

Dancing

"Tripping the light fantastic" has been made a real art by the Dance Club, which has shown us all that there is much more to dancing than the Lindy. Those who aspire to attain the perfection of a Pavlova first prove their ability to handle their limbs in the Apprentice Group, which is a sort of Jay-Vee team to the varsity. From those, some are asked to join the Dance Club which is led by Alice Gates as faculty advisor and President Harriet Tutelman. This is a most select inner group in which are acquired a lot of stiff muscles, some splinters in the feet, and a chance for some A-1 terpsichorean training.

"Swing Your Partners!"

is the cry of the folk-dancers who come together every week to have a lot of fun—and get not a little exercise. Judy Braude and Freeland Barbour are the leaders, and the group is multiplying as fast as the Income Tax, but it's much more popular

OUTING CLUB

Sizzling steaks over a camp-fire, the familiar strains of "It Was Only an Old Beer Bottle"... these are the memories which the members of the Outing Club can cherish for many years to come. The war didn't succeed in cramping their style very much this year—they went on outing it, with hikes, outdoor breakfasts, co-ed swimming parties, and week-ends at the W.A.A. cabin. "Henry" Brooks was President until April, 1944, when "Freddy" Nelson took over. Other Spring officers were Liz Crowell, as Program Chairman; Ruth Smith, in charge of those all-important funds, and Liz Lucas as secretary.

Efforts to get the faculty in on Outing Club doings were made, and a hike—which had to be held indoors because of the weather!—was held with them. But the most memorable event of all was the week-end spent at the cabin on Mr. Pittenger's farm. Other Outing Clubbers from Penn and Johns Hopkins came to defy a sub-zero temperature and pitchforks in the hay-loft, which served as sleeping quarters—but they had a lot of fun, too, which is just what the Outing Club should do.

"Gwimp is not an honorary society, and we work!" declared Win Boak, fall president of this women's sports organization, who succeeded summer prexy Nancy Carpenter, and was followed by Sandy Groff in the spring. The name of Gwimp usually arouses in our minds visions of hilarious initiations, with future members clad in pajamas or towels, sans make-up; or perhaps we think of the pretty pageant of the May Day program. But there is a lot more to this group than meets the eye. Its 16 members also help the W.A.A., and arrange and manage all inter-collegiate and inter-class matches, which is a big, big job.

The Gwimp gals include the managers of the four major sports—hockey, basketball, swimming and tennis, plus the junior manager and intramural manager of each sport. Then there are also the managers of the other sports—golf, archery, badminton, fencing, softball. These managers are chosen when sophomores, but are not active until juniors.

Trying out for this organization is one of the more gruelling experiences, but it brings out the best—or the worst!—in a person. Chasing balls for the varsity tennis team at practice on a cold November afternoon isn't exactly relaxing, but when the members of Gwimp walk into a violently clinking dining-room en masse, in all their white-sweatered glory, they know that it's worth the struggle.

Jhe Summer Setup

PF is short for physical fitness, which is the short way of making the most muscles ache. PF is divided into two parts; there is "basic," which is another way of spelling purgatory, and there is "maintenance," which is an idyllic muscular paradise to which all good muscles eventually go.

Last July, with the advent of the Navy, the PF program really got going. And except for a fortunate few who escaped to either the baseball or the track squad, all Swarthmore men were assigned to "basic" for the first semester. Those first few weeks were enjoyed by none. One baffled Navy man summed up campus opinion of "basic" with the plaint, "If you don't get vourself in shape, vou're doing Hitler's work. And if you do, you're doing the devil's." Under the satanic guidance of Navy Chiefs Newman, Gracey, and Vivian, and Swarthmore coaches Blake, Dunn, Stetson, and Faulkner, 500 Navy men and 150 civilians sweated through five hours a week of push-ups, sit-ups, deep knee bends, squat jumps, squat thrusts, and that arch ache-maker, the crab walk. The pictures on the surrounding pages depicting men performing such exercises were taken late in the summer semester, and are only a mild reflection of the grimacing nature of the work. ???

As time went on, various Swarthmore men, both Navy and civilian, cultivated the art of goldbricking PF. One civilian temporarily solved the problem by showing up for three consecutive afternoons distinctly under the influence of alcohol. "I never feel a thing," was his happy comment. Lack of funds precluded further experimentation with this form of anesthesia. A misguided few among the Navy feigned inability to swim and thus were given swimming instead of PF for three days a week. Chief Gracey's vigorous instructional methods soon showed these artful dodgers the folly of their ways. More obvious forms of goldbricking, such as hiding in the rear row, have proven ineffective under the argus-eyed glance of the muscle-bosses.

One thing which even the baseball players couldn't evade was the strength tests given once a semester. At this form of competitive agony, the Navy men have had a consistent edge over the civilians, although the two high scorers in these tests, Bob Smith and Tom Koury, are both ex-Swarthmore civilians.

After the passage of the first few weeks, the physical drill became a little easier. The period of actual callisthenics was shortened and time was allowed for soft-ball, or, as fall and winter came on, touch football. The program was also softened by the collapse of the obstacle course. The eight-foot board wall developed a mysterious crack in it which made it considerably easier to scale, and the hurdles scattered along the 500-yard course had a similarly mysterious tendency to disintegrate.

The 1945 grid season, coached by Carl Dellmuth, Athletic Director, and manned by 70 squad members, was a success. The Garnet eleven won five games out of eight, suffering two of its losses to Franklin and Marshall Collge, one of the toughest small-school teams in the country. As far as point comparisons go, Swarthmore rolled up a season total of 156 points to its opponents' 65.

Because only one civilian letterman, Captain Jack Mochel, was on hand, Dellmuth relied largely on athletes in the Navy program here. And only two former Swarthmore civilians were included in this group, Oscar Powell and back Bob Stauffer. The rest of the team was composed of athletes from Haverford, Lehigh, Lafayette, et al.

Two difficulties had to be, and were largely, overcome by Carl. The starting eleven, although individually experienced, was not accustomed to working together. Hard, sweaty practice sessions overcame most of this, while the rest of the trouble had to be resolved by mistakes in early-season games.

Kachadurian, Crabtree, Richardson

BALL

The second difficulty was the October (mid-season) graduation of such stars as Mochel and Dee Crabtree, jut-jawed, red-haired backfield ace who had helped lick Swarthmore in the previous season's Haverford game. The large squad and the rapid development of such players as Stauffer and Bill Luff, 142-pound "scat-back," helped solve this problem, as did the fact that most of the Garnet's opponents were in a similar position.

Over the season, several players emerged as outstanding. Fullback Al "The Mayor" Kachadurian gained a berth on the United Press All-Eastern team because of his phenomenally long as well as accurate forward passes and his hard running. Tailback Dee Crabtree's playing before his graduation in October was, except for an early season attack of fumbleitis, always good and frequently sensational. Jack Ferry, chunky blond center, was a 60-minute player all season. His defensive signal-calling and his pass-interceptions were features of his consistently excellent line play.

Williamson, Dodd, Budd Perrotty

In the backfield other standouts were Harry McCloskey, five-foot-six line plunger and endrunner, who also handled most of the punting: Jim Richardson, the speedy back with the deceptively innocent smile; Don Magill and Bob Finley, two ex-Haverford backs, and muscular Bob Smith, Strength Test champ and bruising blocking back.

Bulwarks on the line were Charlie Rose and "Wink" Williamson, who formed as durable a pair of watch-charm guards as could be found; Gerry Dodd, Dick Perrotty, and Gene Gott, who held down the tackle slots; and glue-fingered, redhaired Ted Tallon, who, along with lanky Hank Judd, Mochel and Powell, assured the local supporters of good end play.

The season opened, on September 11, with a Swarthmore victory over the Ursinus Bears, 12-0. Three thousand spectators saw a sloppily-played game highlighted only by a startling fourth down scoring pass from Kachadurian to Judd, a 47 yard touchdown dash by Richardson, and Crab-tree's hard running, which netted the phenomenal average of 6.6 yards per try.

The following week, the F. & M. line, averaging 215 pounds, proved too much for the Little Quakers and we lost, 16-12, our two scores coming late in the final quarter.

The Temple game, played on a rainy Friday night in the Temple Stadium, was a heart-breaker. Over 5000 drenched onlookers saw us lose, 15-6, after grabbing a 6-0 lead on the first play of the game as Crabtree broke loose for a 68 yard goal dash.

On October 9, Swarthmore hit a winning stride, nosing out Muhlenburg in a 14-15 thriller that saw Kachadurian and Ferry come into their own. The following week C. C. N. Y.'s distraught civilians were annihilated in a game whose score only a sadist would remember.

On the 25th of October, the Garnet took another crack at the Diplomats from F. & M. Until the final minutes of the game, Swarthmore played stubborn but uninspired football, trailing 7-0 with five minutes to go. Then the Garnet scored on an electrifying sustained march led by Kachadurian, McCloskey and 9 blocking fools. The scoring play was a 45 yard pass, from "Kach" to Judd. But the attempted conversion failed and the game ended with us on the heart-breaking end of a 7-6 count.

Muhlenburg then journeyed down from Allentown, only to be handed their second set-back, 15-8, in a game which saw Kachadurian still throwing scoring passes, and saw Swarthmore squeeze out of a bad hole in the final quarter by giving the Mules an intentional safety.

A game with the Atlantic City Naval Air Station closed the varsity season. The Garnet took this, 15-6, but only with Carl using every trick play in his little black book, including the hoary Statue of Liberty and a "sleeper," all of them good for long gains. Lew Elverson, pre-war Swarthmore grid coach and war-time coach of Atlantic City, slipped into the game himself for a few minutes, but to no particular avail.

The junior varsity squad, better known as Blake's Bearcats, also had a successful season, winning four out of six. The game with the Haverford varsity was the highlight of this or any other jayvee season. Five hundred fans saw the draft-depleted Ford civilians edge out the Blakesmen, 20-12. Stars for the Bearcats were Jerry Kohlberg, Pete Dudley, and Don Kelley.

SOCCER

Veteran soccer coach Robert Dunn guided a predominantly civilian squad of booters through a series of engagements with the toughest teams in the East. The varsity soccer squad triumphed four times, dropping four contests along the way.

The Garnet opened the season with nine holdovers from the previous season's varsity: Tex Cope, high-jumping goalie; Rusty De Burlo, Bill Carson, Frank Mustin, and Pete Beck on the forward line, and an all-veteran defense composed of Captain Dave Tappan, Ed Cooley, Barc White, and Charlie Newitt. Also on hand and destined to see plenty of action were Gary Bock, Ned Neuberg, Bob Wood, and Frank Nicholson, for offensive punch, and Mac McKinstry, Jim Sutor, and Cal Kaiser for reserve strength on the defense.

With this powerhouse, the Dunnmen opened, September 18, against a team representing the British Royal Navy. This squad was studded with former English professionals and gave an exciting exhibition of plain and fancy ball-handling before succumbing to the Garnet's power and stamina, 2-1, the winning goal coming on a beautiful shot by Halfback Newitt from about 25 yards out.

Playing against Muhlenberg the following week, the local booters won another close one, edging out the Allentown V-12'ers, 5-2. Bock and Neuherg shook the nets for the first two goals, and then DeBurlo, fiery haired hustler, took a beautiful assist from Nicholson to score the winning goal.

Swarthmore ran its string to three straight, when it ran an all-civilian Lehigh team into the ground, swamping the Engineers, 4-0. This victory was featured by a brilliant bit of heading on the part of Pete Beck which gave us an early lead, and a goal coming on a smashing free-kick by Tappan.

Traveling to Army to meet the terrible Cadets, the Dunnmen dropped their first match of the season by a 5-1 count. The outstanding defensive work of Captain Tappan and the alert goal-tending of Cope kept the goal-hungry Academy boys in a restless state, while a low goal shot by Bill Carson gave them something concrete to worry about.

The match with Princeton marked our fourth victory, as the confident Tigers were whitewashed, 2-0, Nicholson and Cooley scoring. But this game was the last for six October graduates on the varsity. Especially missed was Tappan, whose defensive play was of an All-American calibre all season.

With the loss of over half the team, Swarthmore's patched-up varsity dropped the last three games on the schedule, losing to Penn, 9-5; to Navy, 5-1, and to Temple, 2-1.

VARSITY SOCCER

In the Princeton, Penn, and Navy games, center-forward Frank Nicholson came into his own, scoring one goal in the Princeton and Navy engagements, and banging home three shots against the rugged Penn defense. Although Frank jumped into the Eastern Intercollegiate League's scoring race late in the season, his hard, accurate booting gained him second place among Eastern scorers, no small achievement for a man spending his first season with the varsity.

The Temple game, the final varsity contest, saw the Garnet lose, as was mentioned, 2-1, to the Owls. But the remarkable part of the game was that Swarthmore's goal was scored by a Temple forward-liner, the Owls' right outside slipping on the muddy turf and accidentally booting the ball past his astounded colleague in the goal.

BASKETBALL

The Swarthmore basketball team went through the toughest schedule in Garnet court history last season, playing sixteen games within eight weeks. Included on the roster was such "big-time" competition as Penn, Army, Navy, and Princeton. With a small squad of light boys, the schedule proved more than sheer fight could handle, and the Stetsonmen dropped 11 out of 16.

The varsity line-up featured Jake Earley and Bobby Adams at the forward slots, Ray Winch at center, and Harry Boardman and Bill Emmet at the guard spots. Lee Townsend, lanky civilian, developed rapidly under Stetson's tutelage and gained a regular berth with the Garnet, while Bob Pope, Bob Stauffer, and Bruce Stewart, substitute guards, played some brilliant ball throughout the season.

"Moose" Boardman, high-scorer on the previous season's Garnet five, met the challenge of the V-12 men from other schools and again led in the scoring department. Winch, handsome skyscraper from Rutgers, and Earley, scrappy little push-up shot artist, were hot on Boardman's heels in the scoring race.

Despite the 11 losses of the Little Quaker quintet, the squad received enthusiastic support from the College. This enthusiasm probably stemmed from the hard scrap Swarthmore consistently put up, win, lose or draw, as well as from the facts that Swarthmore's opponents were invariably colorlul and frequently top-notch basketeers, and that the V-12'ers were given Liberty until 10 if they attended the games.

The season itself had a happy ending, as well as a happy beginning, but had a great big sag in the center. The Stetsonmen got off to a flying start early in December by walloping the Philadelphia Navy team and then nosing out the Philadelphia Coast Guard, one of the better teams in this section, 41-40. In the latter game Jake Earley paced the locals with 15 points.

Trouble then started and the Garnet dropped ten straight contests. Most of this losing string resulted from bad scheduling breaks. Drew College, scheduled as a breather, proved to be one of the best teams in the East. Muhlenberg, whom we played twice, came up with a host of big-time players from L. I. U. and elsewhere. And then there was Army, voted the outstanding team in the country this year. Against Penn Swarthmore played a fine brand of ball, only to have Chink Crossin, Red and Blue ace, run wild, rack up 29 points, and give the terrified Penn partisans a narrow 53-45 victory. This tough loss had followed a heart-breaking court duel with Princeton which we lost, 45-44.

After the Penn game the local five got moving. Football losses to F. and M. were handsomely revenged by Swarthmore's quintet, beating the Dips, 49-57 and 67-65. In this wild-scoring fracas, Earley and Boardman pumped in 16 points apiece, while Bob Pope racked up 15. Playing a return game with Villanova, the Garnet showed probably their finest brand of ball, knocking off the favored Wildcats before an enthusiastic, noisy Field House crowd, 49-58. This game featured sparkling defensive work by Emmet and Adams and took a good deal of the misery out of the Garnet court season.

VARSITY WRESTLING

WRESTLING

Boasting an uncrowned collegiate wrestling champion, the Garnet grapplers defeated three out of six opponents last winter, losing only to the muscle-monopolies at Annapolis and West Point, and to Lehigh, a school that has been a power in intercollegiate wrestling since Jimmy Londos was a youngster. Garnet victims were Muhlenberg, Ursinus, and Franklin and Marshall.

Reed Fulton, blond V-12 heavyweight from Lehigh, went through the season without dropping a match, and dropping, among others, Joe Stanowicz, Army's football ace who became Eastern Intercollegiate champ. For his performance throughout the season, Fulton was elected team captain at the season's close.

Other high scorers for George Reimer's mat proteges were Bob Gibson, 175-pound Middle Atlantic Champion from Lafayette, who won four out of six, losing close decisions to two opponents from those military academies; Bill Halliday, 156-pounder with the deceptively harmless appearance, and Fred Selby, 128-pound civilian representative, both of whom took three for six.

Hard-luck man of the year was gloomy Tex Huston, capable 121-pounder who invariably picked out a champion of some sort for his opponent.

The 145, 155, and 165 pound berths were in a state of chaos throughout the season. Jim Lawless and John McCurdy alternated at the 145-pound slot, making a game fight against far more experienced foes.

Bob Wilson, lanky civilian; Don Kelley, wrestling smoothie who was retired on an eligibility ruling; Ed Klein, the best "rider" on the squad, and Bob "Goliath" Smith all took shots at the two middleweight brackets.

SWIMMING

The Garnet tankmen went through an abbreviated 6-meet season, and came up at the end with a record of two wins as against four losses. The victories were scored over Stevens Institute, 45-23, and Temple University, which we submerged by a 50-24 score. The losses were administered by Penn, 19-55; Franklin and Marshall, 29-46; Princeton, 19-55, and the Navy powerhouse, which really walloped us, 9-65. Considering the formidable character of the opposition and eligibility difficulties which deprived us of promising backstroker Al Brodie and fancy diver Charlie Rose, the season could loosely be termed a success. Ironic was the loss suffered to the F. and M. Diplomats, who beat us with the help of ace freestyler Bob Dippy, captain of last season's Garnet varsity, who went with the Marine unit at F. and M.

Standout for Coach McAdoo's proteges was breaststroke star George Rogers, who led the team scoring with 50 points. Following closely on Rogers' heels in the scoring race were Bernard "Bing" Bang, dash man who racked up 22 points, and Jack Kietzman, who totaled 16.

A surprisingly large number of boys reported to stubby, jovial, and capable Coach McAdoo at the opening of the season, most of them being men with Swarthmore's V-12 unit. Among the few civilian members of the varsity squad were Frank Mustin, veteran at the 50-yard dash; civilian freshman Joe Cramer and John Park, both of whom helped the relay teams considerably. Both of these men contributed more than their quota of points, but the bulk of the team's strength was supplied by Navy men. Among these were Rogers, Bang, and Kietzman; Hiram "Hi" Budd, who handled the diving chores: Ed Barnes, who competed in the 50-yard dash and the medley relay, and long-distance swimmer Ohrenschall.

Low spot of the season was, of course, the debacle suffered at Annapolis. The high spot was the water carnival with Temple that posed as a swimming meet. Facing decidedly inexperienced opposition, McAdoo gave every person with an available suit a chance to earn some points.

LACROSSE

Jhe

Building around a nucleus of experienced men, Ave Blake, All-American stick coach, turned enough grass-green candidates into semi-finished players to give the Garnet lacrosse squad an adequate array of strength. At the time this was written, the Blakemen had sweated out their annual losses to Army and Navy, lost to the undefeated Stevens outfit, and then larruped the C. C. N. Y. civilians, 14-0.

Lettermen returning from the previous season's Garnet ten were Pete Beck and Bill Need, two steady hustlers at midfield; Ted Jones, probably the best stick handler on the squad, and Fred Selby, goalie. Importations of experienced stickmen through the V-12 program gave Blake Reed Fulton, All-Pennsylvania midfielder, and 190 pounds of bruising offensive threat; Will Haddon, versatile and scrappy attack man who played some good games at goal, and flip-shot artist Mort Huber.

Rounding out the starting squad were Don Riley and John Ferger, two aggressive defensemen who developed with phenomenal rapidity; Bob Kuller, speedy midfielder, and attackman Harry McCloskey, the human torpedo.

Others who added plenty to the varsity squad were hard-fighting Ed Bradbury and Clay Rich at defense; Al Nathan, Boots Bennett, and Irv Scott at midfield, and Tom Koury at attack.

BASEBALL

The varsity nine, coached by Robert Dunn, had one of the best all-around teams in recent Garnet baseball history. A smooth-functioning infield, a dependable outfield, and a few sluggers to bring the boys home gave Swarthmore plenty of strength; all that was lacking was a star pitcher to keep the opposition in check. Both Bob Lobell, number one hurler, and Norm Morton, who pitched beautiful ball in the 1-0 "moral victory" defeat by Navy, were good pitchers, but both lacked the experience to handle the rough schedule.

 $M_{orton}$

The men who filled the other eight positions were Dick Perotty, catcher and clean-up hitter; Bill Brodie at first; Joe Reese at second; Ed Barnes, smooth fielding shortstop; Don Skelly at third, and the slugging outfielders, Rusty DeBurlo, Al Kachadurian, and Wayne Kreider. Others who saw considerable action were Don Youngblood, Jack Ferry, Walt Monschein, Wayne Moxley, and Bob Price.

TRACK

Coach Barron's trackmen had all the prospects of a good season, being blessed with a well-balanced squad and several outstanding performers. Dan Wingerd proved a triple-winner in the Temple meet (which we won) and in the Muhlenberg meet (which we lost), his events being the 100 and 220-yard dashes and the discus. Rangy Ray Winch was a consistent winner in the high-jump and the broad-jump, while John Moore, hurdle star, won his share of races despite a leg injury.

Other Garnet cindermen who looked impressive in early meets this spring were Neil Gilmour, pole-vaulter; Ned Jones, low-hurdler; Dick Perry, two-miler; Mac Cambell in the 880, George Barnewell in the high-jump, and shot-putter Dick Kirkpatrick. Rounding out the squad were Williamson, Grote, Harris, Corman, Morey, and Canon.

VARSITY TENNIS

TENNIS

Having a well-balanced squad, but being short on individual stars that have graced previous Swarthmore tennis teams, the Garnet netmen, under Ed Faulkner's capable tutelage, had prospects for a slightly better than average season. At the time this article went to press, the squad had played only one match, taking Penn State's civilians into camp by a 6-5 score.

Playing at the number one singles slot was Bruce Stewart, stocky civilian player and the only man with previous varsity experience. Bill Clendenin, A-average civilian student, played number two; Marsh Schmidt, long, lean, and handsome Swarthmorean with the V-12, filled in at number three, while Paul Harrison, from Penn; Harry Boardman, basketball star, and red-haired Jim Kelly rounded out the singles division.

At doubles, Stewart and Schmidt combined at the one spot, Harrison and John "Happy" Easter made the second duo, while Boardman and Bob Finley, Haverford footballer, made a smooth number three team.

WOMEn'S

Wherever a Swarthmore girl wields a racket, whenever a Quakerette shoots a goal—the Women's Athletic Association has something to say about it. It manages everything from intercollegiate swimming meets to the oranges offered to hot and weary basketball players in between quarters.

The management of the organization is provided by the W.A.A. Council. This Trojan troop of executives, headed for several semesters by Peg Walker, is composed of about eight girls, chosen usually from those who worked on sub-committees during the previous year. An enthusiastically industrious group, it not only finances all of the women's sports activities, but plans social affairs along the oudoorsey line as well. Their picnics are noted for offering food that would satisfy even an epicure, and then, too, there are week-end excursions to the W.A.A. cabin. Built on Mr. Pitt's farm just a few years ago, it offers the perfect opportunity to get-away-from-it-all. There you have regular back-to-nature roughing-it; you get your water from a spring in the woods, tramp down to the swimming hole to cool off during the day, and gather round an open fire-place at night. Swarthmore and civilization seem mighty far away.

Other W.A.A. activities to be noted include the annual hockey banquet—complete with skits, most of the planning for the May Day celebration, and, finally, pioneer work in organizing and encouraging sports which are new to Swarthmore, such as girls lacrosse, for instance.

As in the case of W.S.G.A., each woman automatically belongs to the W.A.A. as soon as she enters college. But few actually realize what an important body it is. The W.A.A. deserves the thanks of all co-eds for making women's sports as availably active as they are.

Captain Anita Kelley

HOCKEY

Our hockey team was handicapped this year by the fact that the entire squad was unable to begin practice until the first of November, when the winter semester started at Swarthmore. In spite of the fact that most of our opponents had been practicing for several months, Coach May Parry was able to whip the team into shape for the first game on November 5, and topped Drexel, 2-0.

Six squad members returned from last year: Bobbie Coles, who played right wing; Peg Walker, left wing; Bunny Pyle, left half; Tommy Broomell, right half; Molly Keay, center half, and Captain Anita Kelley played left inner. Two freshmen made the varsity squad: Nancy Smith, who played center forward, and Nancy Fitts at left forward. The rest of the line-up included Win Boak as goalie, and sophomores Ronnie Landon and Jean Kistler, playing right inner and right forward, respectively. Substituting in most of the games were Harriet Frorer, Betty Roberts and Peg Meeker.

The relatively short practice period accounts for the fact that the team, although it did very nobly, did not quite achieve the brilliant record that the Garnet stickwomen have obtained in previous years. The record shows two victories, two losses, and two ties. The second game, with Bryn Mawr, was fought to a 5-3 standstill. After the Bryn Mawr game, the team participated in an intercollegiate tournament of the various hockey teams of the East, in which Nancy Fitts won a position on the second Intercollegiate team. The next game, with Penn, ended in another tie, 1-1. We beat Beaver, 2-0, with little difficulty. However, in the next game, we suffered the first defeat of the season, at the hands of Ursinus, but paradoxically, this was the team's best game of the year. Ursinus had been unbeaten for two years and Swarthmore fought hard to hold them at a one-point lead, the final score of the game being 5-2. A little disillusioned, the gals did not display the same fighting spirit in the tussle with Temple and dropped this game, 5-0.

All the members of the varsity line-up received letters at the end of the season at the traditional hockey banquet: Kitty Taylor received an award for four years' membership on the team.

The "jay-vees" succeeded in defeating Bryn Mawr, Drexel, and Temple, and tied Ursinus. Kinnie Clarke, Dotty Dana, Sheila Edgar, Gloria Evans, Marge Griffin, Isabelle Witte, Marty Hill, Betty James, Phyl Kinkaid, Eleanor Preston, Ann Solis-Cohen, Faye Stewart, and Bobby Taylor played on this team.

Climaxing the season was the Greek Gods game, which ended in a debatable tie, 2-2. As good Swarthmoreans know, this game takes place annually between the varsity hockey team and the senior lettermen who, in unique attire, supposedly depict Greek deities. This year, the "Gods" consisted mainly of Navy V-12 football and soccer players who flocked en masse up and down the field, chasing the ball.

Eleanor Preston was the manager, with Jan Stanley assisting as junior manager. Jill Staman succeeds Jan next year and Peggy Walker will be new varsity captain.

VARSITY BASKETBALL SQUAD

Losing just two games the entire season, the women's basketball team brought down six victories and bowed only to Bryn Mawr and Temple. Marty Fuchs was the captain, Cubby Bair, the senior manager, and Margie Chadwell, the junior manager.

The first game was played against the alums, a practice game but very exciting, with a score of 20 to 17. Ursinus was the first opponent on the intercollegiate schedule and Swarthmore started with a big victory. The first line-up included Marge Griffin, Bobby Coles, Amy Roosevelt, Marty Fuchs, Nancy Garver, and Bunny Pyle. Against Penn, the next foe, the winners came through by the narrowest of margins, 18-17. In this game Roosevelt, Coles, Meeker, Fuchs, Jesperson, and Garver came into the Swarthmore line-up. The same girls were in the starting positions to meet Drexel; Roosevelt and Griffin alternated at one forward post, Jesperson and Pyle taking turns at center guard. Again it was very close, but the Garnet came through, 15 to 12.

Our fourth victory was against Beaver with a score of 28 to 24. Sinking 18 beautiful points put Peg Meeker at the top of high scorers in this game. Rosemont stooped to the tune of 20-25, meeting a slightly changed Swarthmore line-up: Meeker, Coles, and Roosevelt, Molly Keay substituting for Peg. Unexpected but true, the tiff with Bryn Mawr came next and changed the dream of an undefeated season. The opponents rolled up a score of 50 against our 24, leaving us to mourn our first set-back. Two newcomers to the court were Dottie Dana, playing a quarter for Peg Meeker, and Ronnie Landon, sharing the left guard with Bunnie Pyle.

Again another loss came our way: by the end of the fourth quarter, Temple somehow managed to double our total points. The score was 44 to 22. Coles. Keay, Dana, Fuchs, Garver, and Landon made the starting line-up. Immaculata produced plenty of worry for a few minutes, but the garnet and white were too determined to make their final game a victory and sank four more points than their rivals, totaling 50 to 26. Honors for high scoring went to Dottie Dana.

On the second team were Toots Frorer, Sue Bradley, Phyl Kinkaid, Phyl Lohr, Betty Roberts, Nancy Smith, Prudy Hyde, and Doris Carr, with various members of the varsity helping them from time to time. Like the varsity, this team lost just two of their games, to Ursinus and to Beaver, bringing back the high scores in the other four games on their schedule.

Peg Meeker is the captain for next year and Nancy Fitts will be manager.

BADMINTON

The varsity badminton team, composed of Jean Blanchard, Edie Graef, Midge Dodson playing singles, and Doris Carr and Ann Millis, Barb Bowen and Dot Greene in the doubles posts, won all of the games it played this year. It was unscored against in the four intercollegiate varsity matches, none of the players needing more than two games against any of their opponents to win. In the first match of the season, with Temple, the girls got off to a flying start with a score of 5-0. The Penn match was won in the same manner, Against the Swarthmore Club, the score was 5-2. Beaver and Drexel were again unanimous victories for the Parrygirls. The last game of the year was a JV match against Rosemont, with the final score 5-2. In this match, Millis defeated her singles opponent and both doubles teams, Nancy Kent and Nancy Dodge, and Chris Dorsey and Betsey Dempf, were victorious. Doris Carr, playing singles, and the doubles team of Bowen and Greene, each dropped their matches.

The varsity squad, in addition to the girls mentioned above, included Betty Ann Gawthrop and Jan Rogers: Jean Blanchard, undefeated through the season, was the captain: the managers were Edie Graef and Mary Ann Haertter. Midge Dodson, Dot Greene and Barb Bowen received letters this year.

Back: Dodge, Dodson, Kent, Dempf. Front: Blanchard, Millis, Graef, Carr, Bowen.

Blanchard, Captain.

Dodson, Millis.

TENNIS

The prospects of the women's tennis team look good this year, despite the fact that no team had been definitely chosen at the time. Peg Meeker, playing singles, and doubles-players Ann Millis and Ann Solis-Cohen return to the squad from last year. Ed Faulkner held voluntary classes all winter for team prospects in order to get them into shape by spring.

Three forthcoming matches are definite: Temple, home, on April 28th; Drexel, away, on May 5rd, and Beaver, away, on May 5th.

GOLF

The golf team, managed by Nancy Carpenter and Rae Wright, seems to be in for a freak season in which few women go out for the sport. So far. certain standbys are Captain Liz Crowell, Bobby Taylor, a veteran from last year, and newcomer Dottie Dana.

Swarthmore will definitely play Beaver and Penn; other matches, as of April 7, have not been arranged.

FENCING

The fencing team has been practicing since the first of November, under the able instruction of Mrs. Vokral, who was the last Olympic champion. The girls do foil fencing only, and all use French foils.

The first meet of the season will be at Bryn Mawr on April 18th; following that the team will go to New York on the 22nd of April for the Intercollegiate Fencing meet.

ARCHERY

Swarthmore shot in the intercollegiate telegraphic indoor tournament in March, but no results have been received as yet. Aside from this match, the schedule for the varsity team is tentative as yet. Frances Blackburn, highest scorer last year, and M. J. Gray are the only veterans on the squad, but Dinny has hopes that she has three strong potentials in the Freshman class.

AN INVITATION

A SIX-POINTED STAR was the first fire mark used by the Insurance Company of North America to identify houses insured by it. A unique specimen, it is one of 117 on permanent exhibit in our Twelfth Floor Museum at 1600 Arch Street, which you are invited to inspect at your leisure. Many other curios and documents of interest to students of history and colonial art are here for you to enjoy. You will be welcome.

A Distinctive Yearbook . . .

is the product of the efforts of a capable editor plus the interested cooperation of a seasoned specialist. To an editor, who wishes to make a success of his first publishing venture, specialization offers innumerable advantages that are most helpful—in fact—indispensable.

It is advisable to have a specialist handle your yearbook. Investigate the services of "Campus," an organization whose entire business is college and school publications.
